Doctor Highlight

Dr Derk Pol

Cardiologist & Interventional Fellow

BSc (Hons), MBBS, FRACP

Dr Derk Pol is part of our Medical services, he completed his post graduate medical degree locally at Monash University in Churchill. Derk completed his basic physician training at Monash Health, he then went on to complete his advanced training in cardiology at the Royal Melbourne Hospital and Monash Heart. Derk completed an additional two-year fellowship in interventional cardiology at Monash Heart. During his interventional fellowship he co-founded Gippsland Cardiology Service, which has grown to be the largest cardiology practice in Gippsland and has cared for over 4,500 patients thus far.

Derk has an interest in general cardiology, acute coronary syndrome and hopes to one day provide an acute cardiac service for myocardial infarctions for regional patients, at Latrobe Regional Health. Derk has published peer reviewed research in both Australian and international journals in addition to presenting his work at national cardiology conferences.

Derk practices at Maryvale Private Hospital, Latrobe Regional Health and Monash Heart - Monash Medical Centre. Derk is part of Gippsland Physicians Group providing care to patients with general medical issues that don't require intensive care and can be managed on a medical ward.
