Doctor Highlight

Dr John Politis Lung and Sleep Physician

Dr John Politis is part of our Medical services, a specialist in lung diseases and sleep disorders. He first completed a Bachelor of Biomedicine from the University of Melbourne in 2010, then subsequently graduated from medical school with a Doctor of Medicine at the University of Melbourne in 2014.

John completed his Advanced Training in Respiratory and Sleep Medicine through Monash Health and St Vincent's Hospital Melbourne, obtaining his Fellowship of the Royal Australasian College of Physicians in 2022.

He is active in medical research and is currently undertaking a PhD through Monash University in the area of severe asthma. John has special interests in asthma, COPD, sleep disorders and investigation of lung lesions.

In addition to working at Lung and Sleep in Bentleigh and consulting at Maryvale Private Hospital, John also works at Monash Health where he sees patients in his public clinic at Monash Medical Centre. If your care requires additional services offered through the public system, he can arrange this for you.

John is passionate about educating his patients about their lung and sleep conditions so they feel empowered and confident in managing their own health.

Outside of work, John is an avid basketball fan and spends most of his spare time going on adventures with his wife and twin boys.
